

The Compelled Campaign Will Benefit

New classrooms, private and shared study spaces, added office space and meeting areas will support learning, fellowship, and mentorship to benefit WLS, including:

Teaching & Learning

Modernized classrooms will support the technology and teaching practices found in today's educational environment.

Students

Deeper relationships with peers will develop through shared spaces to spend time together. Plus, student concerns can be addressed more quickly with easier access to professors.

Professors

Increased proximity fosters a more collaborative environment and makes it easier to share ideas. Relationships will thrive when instructors seek insights from colleagues in other disciplines which allows each of them to become better teachers.

The Seminary Family

Improved spaces for students' wives to gather for Bible studies or book clubs, for devotional or marriage workshops with their husbands, or for playdates with their children.

Campaign for Campus Renovation

Our History

Established in 1863, Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary (WLS) was created to train pastors for the Wisconsin Synod. The seminary has a rich history of pastors forming pastors for ministry, including nearly a century on its Mequon campus. In some ways the seminary's age is part of its appeal, providing unique beauty and projecting stability as the preparation of pastors has continued through the generations.

The desire to prepare pastors for the twenty-first century compels us to tackle the challenges of an aging campus and equip the seminary for its mission today and tomorrow.

A Changing World Needs the Changeless Gospel

The seminary's original designs did not anticipate small-group discussion in the classroom and could not have imagined laptops and smart boards. Education has changed along with the students, and we want to offer them—and, most importantly, our Lord—the best.

Today, our mission is as important as ever. Meeting the challenges facing our synod requires God's blessing—and demands our best efforts. Our synod needs more pastors to fill current vacancies and seize new opportunities. Since WLS is the only training ground for pastors in the WELS, it is vital to have facilities that support an excellent educational experience.

Our Vision

Our campus plans include a new education center with classrooms and small-group spaces, a gathering hall addition to our auditorium building, and renovation of existing spaces for a student lounge and on-site faculty offices. Some exciting features include:

Classrooms that encourage interaction and support technology.

Intimate spaces for students and faculty to collaborate, and for students to receive personalized instruction and thoughtful mentorship from their professors.

Places on campus where students, faculty, and their families can meet and develop connections beyond the confines of the classroom.

Ultimately, this project is about presenting God with our finest. He has entrusted to his church the task of proclaiming the gospel, and his love compels us to bring that gospel to the world. Contemplate how we might best glorify God as we train men for that mission today. Consider how you might partner in this work so that our seminary can continue to faithfully and effectively train pastors for generations to come.
